Book launch for a childrens book I illustrated "Wednesday is Jim day".

*My work utilises the
printmaking process
as a means of rendering an
experience of place,
a site or location
close to my personal sensitivity.*

I am based in Warrnambool, Victoria. The South West of Victoria is a great place to live. You don't have to wonder to far to come across a myriad of native animals. They enjoy this environment as much as we do and, I believe, we should preserve native habitat so future generations can enjoy them also.

I enjoy the physical aspect of creating linocuts especially the cutting and gauging out of the surface to produce curvy seductive lines and detailed patterns. Printmaking to me is a way of constantly challenging myself.

I first studied Graphic Design and began my career as a Graphic Designer and illustrator. Community Art and teaching then became my focus and have recently studied visual arts.

In the past few years I have won several art competitions, exhibited in many shows locally and internationally, participated in an artist in residence in the Emergency Department of South West Health Care and illustrated a children's book.
